

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their local channels to air one sided political programming does not make me happy. The last time I looked, the airways were still public domaine and Sinclair isn't paying anything to broadcast over them. As a citizen, I have an interest in the airwaves too. In part, they belong to me. If this is permitted, it is Pandora's box. Imagine every station with a political agenda forcing it's local stations to foist whatever belief they may have on the local viewing audience. It is no better for one party than for the other. It is simply wrong. M. Gries
